MEMORIAL DAY FOR

In a last effort to obtain a new trial for Bertram G. Spencer, convicted of the murder of Miss Martha B. Blackstone, on Round Hill, March 21, 1910, Attorney Richard P. Stapleton of Helyoke, argued on the defendant's exceptions at a special sitting of the full bench of the supreme court of Massachusetts at Boston Thursday. Attorney Stapleton argued at the opening for two hours, after which District Attorney C. T. Callahan delivered by argument cred his argument.

Court adjourned at 12.15 o'clock, taking the case under advisement, and the noon.

It is probable that Spencer will know his fate when the court convenes next month. In opening his argument, Attorney Stapleton asked to be allowed more than one hour to argue his case. This is the usual limit for arguments before the court. Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg replied that the defense took exceptions to the ruling of the court in refusing to permit Horace B. Balley and Benjamin F. Carpenter to compare Spencer's appearances and actions to those of an insane person. Balley had been an attendant in an insane asylum and Carpenter had a relative and a felection.

Justice Arthur P. Rugg replied that who were insane. Both knew the in view of the fact that this is a appearances and actions of insane capital case the court would allow him persons, and yet the court ruled that Chief Defence Insanity.

After stating the principal facts of the murder, stating to the court how Spencer entered the Dow home and shot the Blackstone girl, Attorney Stapleton announced that the principal defense is insanity. Attorney Stapleton said: "One of the first exceptions taken by the defense was on Judge John C. Crosby's refusal to recommit the prisoner to an insane institution. It appears that the prisoner was committed to Bridge-water by order of the court, and was returned by order of Chief Justice Aiken of the supreme court upon a precept issued by him, and without a hearing as provided by law, the order returning the prisoner from Bridgewater for trial did not contain a seal of the court, but was simply the action of a judge of that court. If such action could be taken personally by a member of that court, why could not Judge Croshy exercise equal jurisdiction and return the prisoner for further observation?

In this respect the prisoner was deprived of his right not only under the statutes but also under the 14th amendment of the constitution, which provides that no man shall be deprived of his life or liberty without due process of law. The defense then asked permission to put sfx questions to the jurors, these questions were to the jurors, these questions were intended to be put by the defense in addition to the customary questions, rescribed by statute. Judge Crosby refused to allow these questions.

We come now to the presumation of sanity of the prisoner after evidence of his insanity had been produced by the defense. The court in his charge to the jury ruled that the jury could presume the sanity of the prisoner to the end of the case, and to this charge we took exception."

Treloar Boy Escapes State's Prison.

In court Thursday Judge Reed decided to save John Treloar the stigma of a state prison sentence, and sentenced the boy to a year in jail, after Treloar had pleaded guilty to the charge of indecent assault on Dorothy DeWolf, aged nine years. Treloar, when presented in court Wednesday just after arrest, pleaded not guilty. Wednesday he admitted the whole affair and Thursday changed his plea to guilty.
